

Bio for Andy Rockas

In 2005, after a decade of practicing law as a civil litigator, Andy Rockas was hired by California's Fair Political Practices Commission. Andy was quickly promoted to Senior Commission Counsel at the FPPC where he worked in both the Legal and Enforcement Divisions of that agency.

In early 2008, he was recruited to join a large international law firm where he advised public officials, political committees, and several large corporations, such as AT&T and Chevron, on campaign finance, lobbying, and governmental ethics matters. Andy also updated and edited the official government manual distributed by the California State Legislature's Ethics Committees to all state registered lobbyists as part of California's legally mandated Biennial Lobbyist Ethics Training Program.

In mid-2010, Andy opened the Law Office of Andreas C. Rockas. Andy advises and litigates on behalf of political committees, trade associations, unions, nonprofit organizations, lobbyists, lobbyist employers, candidates, and other entities and individuals regarding the laws and regulations governing campaign finance, lobbying and conflicts of interest.

Andy is the currently sitting Vice President of the California Political Attorneys Association.

Andy also served as Of Counsel to the Law Offices of Wayne Ordos.